COMPREHENSION

Read the poem below and answer the questions that follow in full sentences.

THE BEST MECHANIC
My mechanic and I
Are truly inseparable friends
Whenever my bicycle breaks down
Come rain come sunshine
He fixes it in a day

With service really affordable
Equipped with modern tools
If your mechanic isn't the same as mine
The day your vehicle will break down
You'll dig deep into your pocket

The best mechanic, no doubt
Reach this great mechanic's garage
And within a day or two
You'll be the road king again
Cruising like you own Uganda
By Mpagi Tulu Bokky

COMPREHENSION

Read the passage below and answer the questions that follow in full sentences.

My classmates in primary five have a burning passion for stories. This is because it is one of our English teacher's daily activities during class time. When Mr Mudomo discovered our love for stories, he decided to give us a storytelling moment every week. This is always between 11.00 a.m and midday. At least three pupils have to tell the class stories every Thursday.

Last Thursday was Timo Kabaata's turn to tell his story. This is how Kabaata's story went: "I greet you all my dearest classmates. Today I have a worrisome story I would like to share with you. It is about how my dad and I were about to spend a night on the road." Wamala, one of the small-sized boys in the class, calmly asked, "For what reason?" "Keep calm and listen, Wamala," Kabaata replied and went on with his story.

"It was around midday when my dad and I started our journey from Mpenja to my grandparents' home in Nakasongola. Unfortunately, we did not reach there in four hours as my father had planned. Our car got a mechanical problem as soon as we reached Luweero Town. Father said we were lucky to get such problems when we were in a trading centre, where there were many mechanics and garages. The passers-by directed Father to one of the trusted mechanics in Luweero Town.

When my father contacted the mechanic, he came to our car and took around thirty minutes examining it as he asked us endless questions. He asked my dad how long he had taken without servicing the car. My dad said he wasn't sure since he had taken quite a long time without visiting any mechanic in Mpenja. He also asked us how we realized that the vehicle had had a mechanical problem. To this, I replied that the car engine had started producing a strange sound whenever we approached a hill. Dad added that the brake system of the car had also stopped functioning normally.

The mechanic blamed my dad for taking so long without servicing the family car. He asked dad to drive it to a nearby petrol station where he promised to take around three days repairing it. He told us to use public means of transport to our destination. This was at 10.45 pm. We soon boarded a taxi to Nakasongola, where we spent around three days. On our return, we were excited to discover that the mechanic had changed the engine oil and replaced one of the rear tyres. He had also fixed new seat belts in it. On top of that, the brake system was tick. He asked us to wait for him to replace two of the indicators. This he promised to do within five minutes.

Questions

1. What were the primary five pupils passionate about?
2. Who was the writer's English teacher?
3. On which day could the writer's class tell stories?
4. By whom was the above story told?
5. Where did Kabaata's grandparents live?
6. How long was the journey supposed to last?
7. Where did Kabaata's father find the mechanic?
8. According to the story, why did the mechanic blame Kabaata's father?
9. Was the mechanic able to repair the car?
10. Mention two spare parts the mechanic used?
11. Suggest a suitable title to the above passage.

| willing | willingly |
| hopeful | hopefully |
| slow | slowly |
| soft | softly |
| hopeless | hopelessly |
| public | publicly |
| cheerful | cheerfully |
| excited | excitedly |
| shy | shyly |

- The following adjectives change the last 'y' to 'i' before adding -ly.

| Adjective | Adverb |
|---|---|
| easy | easily |
| shabby | shabbily |
| merry | merrily |
| clumsy | clumsily |
| crazy | crazily |
| lucky | luckily |
| noisy | noisily |
| happy | happily |

- Adjectives ending in -le, replace the last 'e' with -'y'

| Adjective | Adverb |
|---|---|
| capable | capably |
| miserable | miserably |
| amicable | amicably |
| desirable | desirably |
| humble | humbly |
| achievable | achievably |
| able | ably |

COMPREHENSION

Read the passage and answer in full sentences the questions that follow.

Last term I received a letter from my cousin Musa Lutalo who lives in Kitale. He wanted me to spend my Christmas holiday with him. I prepared myself well for the journey so on the second day of my holiday, I was ready for it.

I went to the railway station as early as 6.00 am, well prepared with my luggage. This was about one hour before the train would start its journey. My mother, Mrs Muhangi, had already booked my ticket from the booking office in Bulindo near Goma a day before my journey. As soon as the train arrived, I boarded and sat comfortably. This was half an hour before it would start the journey. The guard whistled loudly and the train was started. Our journey had officially begun.

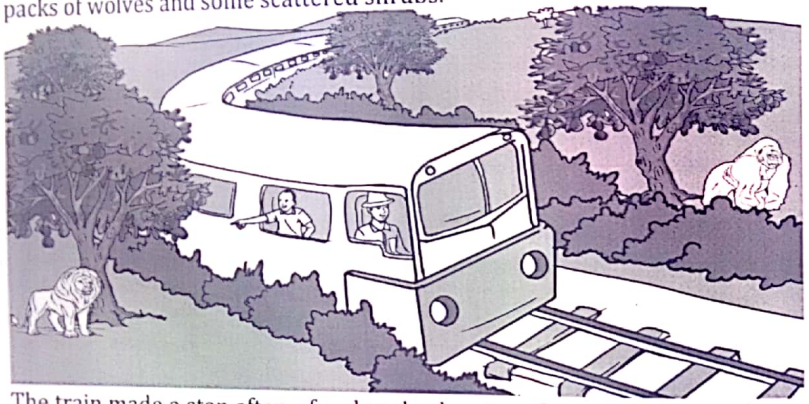
The train ran through a vast country area. In this place, the only creatures in sight were a few wild beasts and birds that were enjoying their leisurely flights in the wild. No people, no domestic animals or birds. I enjoyed watching the scenery of forests, the beautiful peacocks, packs of wolves and some scattered shrubs.



The train made a stop after a few hundred metres from the eye-catching scenery. "We have already reached Tomero," an old man whispered to his grandson from one of the seats on my right. Out of curiosity, I asked the stewardess where we had reached and she told me we had just exited Pambaya Game Reserve. Amazingly, a little wild dog had been running after the train and it stood outside to see the passengers alight. Unfortunately, nobody got off the train. At this point, the stewardess had discovered six passengers on board without tickets. She asked them to pay their fare or else she would not let them alight from the train. Fortunately, they all managed to pay.

The journey continued from Tomero to Kitale Town, the last station. My cousin was waiting just at the station. He told me he had been there for ten minutes. After exchanging good words, hugs and handshakes, we embarked on another six-minute journey, this time by boda boda, to his home in Kitale.

COMPREHENSION

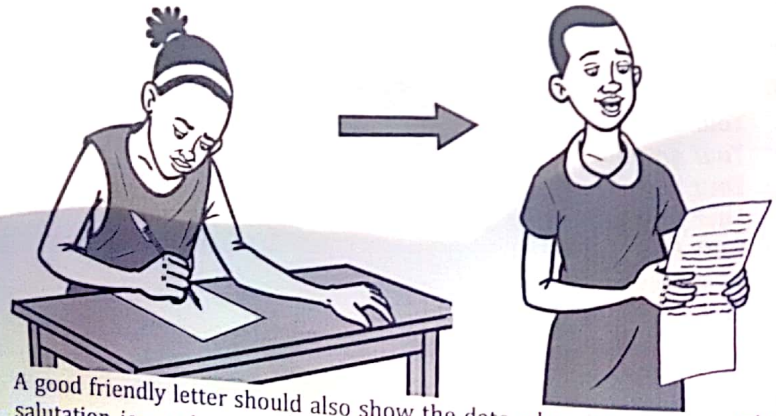
Read the passage below and answer the following questions in full sentences.

Letter writing has been in existence since time immemorial. From the epistles in the Bible to simple writings exchanged between classmates, letters have for long been an important part of our life.

One of the commonest types of letters written nowadays is the friendly letter. I have heard some people call it a personal letter, while others know it as an informal letter. Friendly letters are exchanged between friends, relatives or people who know each other very well. A well-written friendly letter should show the address of the sender. The sender's address bears his or her place of work or residence, the post office box number and the town where that post office is located. The address helps the mailman or any other person delivering the letter to easily locate the recipient.



A good friendly letter should also show the date when it is written. The salutation is another important part of any letter. The salutation is a symbol of respect and politeness from the sender to the receiver of the letter. When writing letters, we should never forget to include the introduction. This brief message should always come in the first paragraph, before one introduces the main reason for writing the letter.

The body of any letter should be as clear as possible. This enables the receiver to read and understand the key message in that letter. Addressers should therefore use simple correct grammar to avoid confusing the person by whom the letter is to be read.

To crown it all, a friendly letter should bear an appealing conclusion. The conclusion too should be written in simple and correct language. The writer will then add the complimentary close and the first name at the end of the letter. That's not all. People who write good letters do all the above, but those who write the best letters do one more thing. They proofread their letters. This helps them to correct any spelling errors that may have been made in the letter.

Questions

1. Which letters were written in the Bible?
2. Which letters do people commonly write nowadays?
3. To which people are friendly letters written?
4. Whose address should be reflected in a friendly letter?
5. Mention the three parts of an address in a letter.
6. In which part of a letter does the sender show politeness and respect?
7. What must the writer put in the first paragraph of a friendly letter?
8. Write another word or words to mean the same as the highlighted words in the passage.

i. addressers
ii. errors

9. Which name should the writer use in a friendly letter?
10. What do people who write the best letters do according to the passage?
11. Suggest a suitable title to the above passage.

COMPREHENSION

Read the passage below and answer the questions that follow in full sentences.

My name is Wabomba Amos. My visit to the post office was a great experience. This is because I was able to learn a number of things. I went to the local post office in Merikit District. This was in December 2019. I found out that the post office was a very peaceful place and everything was quite organized. It was very spacious inside and each department had different responsibilities.

One clerk was employed to receive and send money orders. His name was Mr. Bakunzi Anthony. He was quite a busy person. In fact, everyone else was. These men and women have such a big workload. There was a department which handled post office deliveries. Registered and insured parcels were also handled by a different clerk. Her name was Ms. Akello Sandra. A stamp vendor did the work of stamping all the letters and he was equally busy.

One sorting center was available inside the post office, where all kinds of letters and parcels were sorted according to their addresses. The sorted letters were then given out for dispatching by distributing them to the local mailmen. The mailmen had registers with all the names of the people to whom the parcels were to be sent. These registers had to be returned to the post office regularly for confirmation of delivery. The mailmen had to get the signatures of the recipients of the letters.

However developed our communication systems are, the post office still has its significant role in society. It is a very responsible institution as the letters, parcels or money orders mean a lot to the sender and the receiver. The post office also has a consumer complaint department. This department handles all the complaints raised by the clients.

It was a very nice experience to be inside the post office because I took a look at the items the teacher had taught me in primary five that year.

COMPREHENSION

Read the passage below and, in full sentences, answer the questions that follow.

The mobile phone is one of the iconic products of modern technology. This is because of its many uses. The first telephone was made by Alexander Graham Bell in 1875. This Frenchman is responsible for connecting people to one another all over the world. Mobile phones have become common both in rural and in urban areas today.

Mobile phones are now found almost in every home. People use them to call and speak to their loved ones afar. One can also use the mobile phone to send or receive money. This is possible if one's SIM card is registered for the mobile money service. The mobile phone can also be used to check the amount of money left on one's account in the bank.

Mobile phones, especially smartphones, are even of greater importance. For people who know how to use them the right way, they can easily help to develop one's talent. Young people, especially those with an inborn love for music, can use them to watch and learn new dance strokes. Football fans are also enjoying mobile phones a great deal. They can now download apps that broadcast live football matches. People who work in offices can also use the mobile phone to type, edit, download and share documents with their friends and workmates.

Once upon a time, it was a luxury. But today, the mobile phone has become a basic need. This is because most people have learnt to use it to their advantage. One would therefore feel out of place today if one lost one's mobile phone.

Hello Mr Internet! Kindly lend me your ears
For today I'm here to thank you
For connecting me to the people unknown
From America, Asia, Australia and Europe

Thanks for understanding my only problem
Searching for news without finding it
You saved me from this faulty radio
And some deceitful journalists

But I pity the young and the evil-minded
Whose hard-earned data you take every day
As they post, download and share
Whatever evil content they come across

COMPOSITION

Use the given words to complete the story below correctly.

Is the internet bad for young people? Nowadays, it is much easier than ever to access the _____. Wherever you are, you can listen to your favourite music, read an article and things like that. There is no doubt that many young people spend hours online during their day. It has some advantages, but also a number of drawbacks. One advantage of the internet is that young people especially school children can do _____ for their schoolwork. There are lots of useful websites for students. This often helps teenagers to widen their knowledge and improve their _____.

Another positive aspect of the internet is that people can practise foreign languages by _____ with their friends from other countries. This is also a good way of keeping in touch with friends and family around the world. Even when someone lives hundreds of kilometres from where you stay, you can call each other and have a _____.

On the other hand, the internet can be very disruptive. People often watch movies, and other illicit _____ instead of studying when they need to. Young people become addicted to the internet, and it has an adverse effect on their health. People who spend a greater amount of their time on the internet usually miss sleep and lack focus. They are also more likely to _____ out of school.

To sum up, spending time on the internet has pros and cons. It could help people expand their knowledge and keep in _____ with people around the world. But it is easy to become addicted to the internet too. If you become addicted to the internet, you waste your time on electronic _____ and you won't notice what is happening around you. Young people hardly talk to their families, because they choose to play games or watch movies for hours. In my opinion, the internet is an amazing tool, and its benefits outweigh the downsides. However, we should be careful not to use it to our _____.

CONDITIONAL TWO (IF 2)

- Conditional two is also referred to as if 2.
- Conditional two uses a past simple in the if clause and would plus an infinitive verb in the main clause.
- We use conditional two to talk about imaginary or unlikely situations or impossibilities.
- To emphasize the impossibility, we use were instead of was.

Pattern: If + past simple + would + infinitive

Study the table below and form complete oral sentences from the ideas given.

| If clause (past simple) | Main clause ( would + infinitive) |
|---|---|
| a. If we went to London, | we would speak good English. |
| b. If he were a Rwandan, | he would speak Kinyarwanda. |

Exercise

Rewrite the sentences below using ----------would----------

9. If they go to Greece, they will speak Greek.
10. I don't live in Nigeria so I cannot speak Igbo.

COMPREHENSION

Read the poem below and answer the questions that follow in full sentences.

WHERE WE BELONG

Ugandans are peaceful people
So say the European tourists
Indeed we're peacemakers
Common traditions, related languages

Different tribes, various cultural beliefs
Majority from one key ethnic grouping
The Bantu from Cameroon Mountains
In harmony we live with one another

We breathe in peace, we breathe out harmony
The Baganda, in the central region
Bamasaba, Basoga and Bagwere from the East
Banyankore ,Bakonzo and Batooro form the West

The Plain Nilotes all the way from Ethiopia
Where the Kumam, and the Langi once belonged
With their relatives in Karamoja, and Teso
All in Uganda, the Pearl of Africa

By Ariaka David (Onduparaka P/S)

COMPREHENSION

Read the passage below and answer the questions that follow in full sentences.

"Don't kick it! Don't chase it and please don't stomp it!" These are the words Aunt Namugerwa from Senya Village told me when she saw me in a crazy fight with a bee that kept disturbing me. I was weaving a carpet from banana fibres. This was during my December holiday.

"Mugema, listen to me," she said. "Bees, in our culture, are early warning signals that an important visitor is soon coming to your home," she added. She had such firm beliefs in culture and traditions that she even went ahead to prepare tea for the unknown visitor that day. She also stocked the fridge with enough sodas, preparing to receive that unknown visitor. Unfortunately, not a single person paid us a visit that day.

The following day at around midday, Uncle Kafeero, who works at an antique museum in Mororto, paid us a visit. Immediately my aunt received him, she told him how she had expected a visitor that day. My uncle was dumbfounded to discover that everything had been put in place to give him the warm reception he deserved after staying in Moroto for five consecutive years. Aunt narrated how a bee kept disturbing me on Tuesday. She asserted that the bee had already informed her about this visit. Uncle looked really amazed. The downside of his visit was that it was a one-day event. By 4.00 am on Wednesday, he had already departed from our home.

The following morning, at about eight o'clock, we learnt from Aunt Namugerwa that our uncle had left us with two special gifts from Moroto. "Look at that," she said, pointing to a corner in the kitchen. I saw two three-legged stools. She told me that the Karamojong sit on these stools as they do most of their domestic work. There was also a pair of hard sandals known in Ngakarimojong as lugabiro. She told me they are used for protection from thorns since the Karamojong are known for cattle keeping, a job that makes them spend most of their time in thorny shrubs.

Questions

1. Who stopped the writer from fighting the bee?
2. Where did Mugema and his aunt live?
3. What was the writer doing by the time the bee started disturbing him?
4. Mention one thing Aunt Namugerwa did to prepare for the visitor.
5. Who was Mugema's uncle?
6. Where did the writer's uncle work?
7. Which people live in the writer's uncle's workplace?
8. Which language is spoken in Karamoja?
9. How long did the writer's uncle stay in Senya?
10. According to the story, which economic activity do the people of Karamoja do?
11. How many stools did the writer's uncle leave with Aunt Namugerwa?
12. Write another word to mean the same as the underlined words in the passage.
    a. put in place
    b. departed from
13. Suggest a suitable title to the above passage.

KYAMUSWA POLICE STATION
STATEMENT OF THE COMPLAINANT

Name: Miiro Darius Age: 36 yrs Nationality: Ugandan
Residence: Kyamuswa Village Tel. +25444601?

DATE: 7/9/2022

TIME: 8. 00A.M.

PLACE: KYAMUSWA POLICE STATION

CASE NO. 03/07/09/2022

At about 9.30 a.m on 6th September 2022, I parked my car along Kyansi Road in Kyamuswa Town Council and went to return a faulty TV set and a torch I had purchased from Mr Ludoyera's shop in Kyamuswa. Unfortunately, I was told that he was bathing, so I had to wait for thirty minutes to see him. When I returned to the spot where I had parked my car, I discovered it had been stolen.

My car was a maroon 1999 Mitsubishi Eclipse with a green roof. The car registration number was UVC 387G. I estimated its value at ninety-six million Uganda shillings. I believe I may have left the car key in the boot lock after removing the faulty TV and the torch from the boot.

We are always where you fear to be Always ready to see what you fear to see
Trying our best to give you protection
Ooh no! Are we men and women of steel?

On us you always lean
Unto us you cast all your scorn
To us all your troubles are addressed
Ooh! Wait a minute! Are we Supreme Beings?

Your best guard we have always been
Fighting for you when chaos strikes
Sacrificing our hearts when yours are in panic
Help me Officer, Afande, Commando, blah, blah, blah

But wait a minute! Are we breathing machines?
No! Not at all! We are humans, just like you
So when we hear that we get shocked
Since we are not what you think we are

COMPREHENSION

Read the passage below and, in full sentences, answer the questions that follow.

MY DREAM AS A POLICE OFFICER

Everyone has a dream in life. One becomes successful if one's dream is fulfilled. I also have a dream in my life. My dream is to become a police officer.

The reason I have such a dream is that I want to contribute to the progress of law and order in my country. I have grown up seeing many criminal acts in the whole country and the common people live in terror and anxiety. So it is vital to punish the criminals and bring society back to order.

I want to find out and arrest the criminals and take them for trial. I want to be an example to my fellow citizens when it comes to implementing the law. I want to ensure that the people of my area sleep peacefully at night. My dream is also to be a champion of honesty and integrity in the department of police. I want to identify any corrupt officers and punish them; leading by example will be the way to go. I will then be able to create an example of a corruption-free Uganda.

On our roads, mobs, kidnappers, and other evil people commit crimes and make people's lives miserable. I shall try my best to bring them under punishment and make all traffic routes safe and free of danger. I shall make the roads safe for all the pedestrians and the passengers.

It is my dream to contribute to the country's security by acting as a dutiful and active police officer. I'm now working very hard to fulfill my dream even though I am still struggling to be promoted to primary five.

Questions

1. What happens when one's dream is fulfilled?
2. What is the title of the passage?

Read the passage below and, in full sentences, answer the questions that follow.

COMPENSATION FOR MY PIGGY BANK

During primary five, our English teacher taught us about banking. It was such a nice topic that nearly every pupil got excited about it. I remember Mr Mugagga asking us how many wanted to work in a bank. I saw a forest of hands raised. The teacher was really happy with the class.

He told us that we would work in the bank only if we studied up to university. "For now, we shall look at saving money," he said. "Excuse me Mr Mugagga, can a young girl like me save money in the bank?" asked Scovia. "That's obvious," replied Mr Mugagga. "But you need to have a bank account if you are to save your money in the bank," he emphasized. "However, if you have no bank account, you can still save your money in a small metallic box known as a piggy bank." Mr Mugagga said. The pupils smiled at one another. It was our first time to hear ab how the piggy ba

The following week, I asked Mr. Mujabi, a welder in Kiti Village, to make one for me. I would use it to save a few coins from the weekly pocket money I used to get from my mother. After eight months, I was sure I had saved enough money to buy my first bicycle. I told Mutyaba, my elder brother, about my plan. Unfortunately, my piggy bank went missing the following day. I told my mother about it and we laboured to look for the piggy bank with Mutyaba. We did not find it. "I think thieves broke into our house and stole it," said Mutyaba. However, there was no sign that a stranger had entered our house.

Three days later, as I was coming from school, a nearby carpenter beckoned me. When I reached his workshop, he asked me to tell Mutyaba to go and pick his piggy bank from the workshop. "How did Mutyaba's piggy bank reach here?" I asked out of curiosity. "He brought it here and asked me to help him break it. He then took his savings away," he replied. At this point I was sure Mutyaba had stolen my piggy bank.

When I went home, I narrated the story to Mother. I had already carried the pieces of what was my piggy bank as evidence. Mother then called Mutyaba and asked him several questions about what he had done. He apologized without delay. He promised to give me his only goat as compensation. I sold this goat and finally bought my first bicycle.

31. Read the passage below and, in full sentences, answer the questions that follow.

Every country has laws in order to maintain peace. So, the laws ought to be observed by every citizen. But there are some elements in every society that do not pay any heed to the laws.

The police are charged with one major role - maintaining peace and harmony in society. They do this by arresting and controlling people who violate laws. They enforce the laws of the country. One who does not obey the law is punished by the police. It is because of the police that our lives and property are safe. Hence, a police officer is important for the smooth running of any society. He acts as the ninja in guarding his area. The police are usually men and women of sound health. They wear uniform and carry some weapons like rifles or pistols. They have belts around their waists.

Police officers are assigned various jobs at police stations or check points. They are also posted at that point in the town or city where there is fear of some disturbance or arson. During public demonstrations and strikes, the police play a great role. When the crowds become violent, police officers also use their sticks for controlling the mob. If the situation worsens, police officers will resort to firing with the permission of their commanders. Policemen also provide special protection to political leaders, VIPs and any common man in case of some special need.

These men and women are on duty round the clock. Though they work in shifts, police officers' duties are really tough. They are considered to be the custodians of law and order. They are tough to those who violate discipline and cause unrest. The police officer will remain on duty during the cold nights and chilly mornings, executing their manifold duties. They settle disputes and bring two warring parties to the point of reconciliation. They also uphold the dignity of religious processions and keep the hooligans away from the public. In fact, the police are enemies of all those who indulge in any anti-social activity. They protect the poor and the weak.

The police's job is a long and tough one as we all look up to them for protection. They are the real guardians of the civil society of our motherland Uganda.

Questions

A TOUR TO REMEMBER

One of the most amazing aspects of travelling to the country side is how different everything looks. Narrow roads and tiny huts are all so different from what we have here in the city. Coming from Kampala City where the roads are wide, it was amazing to see roads where barely one car could pass. The commonest means of transport were motorcycles and bicycles. In Kampala, it's quite common to see big SUV's or taxis and buses. These are a rare sight in villages.

Even the trading centres themselves were so much different. I expected to see busy trading centres like the ones I normally see in different outskirts of Kampala. Kombe and Takula were nothing like that. There wasn't a block of flats in sight, and most of the buildings were extremely old. Here in Kampala, everything seems so new compared to the rural areas. Our tour guide took us into one home in Kombe, where a goatherd had constructed the shed for his goats near his house. This was dangerous as it would expose his family members to diseases that result from poor sanitation.

CamScanner

The mountain ranges were also beautiful in these two villages. Standing on Mt Tema, one could see the horizon a couple of miles away. There were beautifully designed cottages between the hills. It was a breathtaking view. The mountains and valleys looked like they went on forever. They made the four-hour bus journey more enjoyable. Travelling has now become part of my life. It has changed my holiday from being a lone wolf to an adventurous person. Travelling has indeed made me an excellent storyteller.

THE POST OFICE

Post offices are located in every town or city. In well-developed urban centres, there are many post offices and their branches. But in smaller urban centres, there is one post office only.

The post office is a useful department for the public. Post offices carry our messages to places afar. On top of that, they charge an affordable amount of money to do this job. This money is known as the postage. The post office therefore enables us to keep in touch with our friends and relatives in distant places.

While at the post office, we put our letters in the letterboxes and they reach our friends and relatives in a very short time. There are a number of windows in the post office. We can send registered letters, parcels and money orders. We can also get postcards, letters, and envelopes at these windows.

The post office also distributes mail to different destinations. The postmen deliver letters in the homes of the addressees or at their workplaces. Postmen are also known as mailmen. The staff at the post office work day in day out. We all admire their hard work. The post office is indeed useful to the citizens of Uganda. Without a post office, life and friendship would become void of meaning.
