SECTION: B

51. Below is a passage, read it carefully and answer in full sentences the questions that follow.

One of the reasons why I have enjoyed learning English is that is an easy subject. It is easy because it is the only subject where information with answers is given then you are asked questions. One can fail to believe, how you can read a story and fail to answer questions about it unless you have a problem with your brain.

Secondly, I like this subject because it has various sources of information. There are text books, novels, internet, magazines, newspapers, journals and dictionaries. This makes it very easy for one to gather a lot of information even without a teacher if one is serious. Take an example of a dictionary, what can't you find? It will give you spellings, pronunciations, alternative words for hard vocabulary, plurals, opposites, short forms and ways of forming new words.

In addition, a dictionary trains you on how to deal with and use all the "parts of speech" which include: nouns, verbs, prepositions, articles, conjunctions, adverbs, adjectives, pronouns and interjections. With the knowledge of all the above, you can become a master of the English language. You can win spelling competitions, write exciting compositions and articles in newspapers as well as answering examinations questions confidently and you can finally get excellent marks. Similarly, learning English as a subject is fun. Have you ever tried pronouncing words in an amazing accent? You may articulate words like a Briton or an American. Words like: obvious, maintenance, ewe, enmity and others appetise my speech and I learn easily.

Another interesting aspect about English is that its facts do not change. A teacher of Mathematics may give you the value of x as 5. Interestingly when he gives another number the next day, he will again tell you that the value of x is 15. Now you wonder which is the exact value of x!!! But in English, a fact is a fact. The past tense of "go" is "went" there is no assumption and neither are there changes. What an interesting subject!!

The hunter's tool doesn't spare
Into the trap falls the hare
Lions, zebras, birds and deer
Fall beneath the hunter's spear

Nature gives us food and land
But we must learn and understand
Conservation is what we need
When there are many mouths to feed.

When all the animals are gone
What shall we do in times to come?
What's left of this world for all to see
Is really up to you and me.
